

Title: Crew Chief
Date: February 23, 2018
Location: Tucson, AZ

Statistical Research, Inc. (SRI), a cultural resources consulting firm, has multiple full-time positions available for full-time salaried crew chiefs. SRI provides comprehensive CRM services to private and government clients at the federal, state, and local levels throughout the western United States from offices in Arizona, California, New Mexico, Texas, and Washington. Although the current positions will be, at least initially, based out of the Tucson office, the successful candidates can expect to be assigned to projects across SRI's entire footprint. Food allowance and lodging are provided for out-of-town assignments.

Minimum qualifications and Experience:

The ideal candidates should possess, at minimum, a Master's degree in Archaeology, Anthropology, or a related field and have completed an accredited archaeological field school. Candidates must also have a minimum of 3 years of field experience working on and/or supervising monitoring, survey, testing, and data recovery projects and be physically fit and able to perform physically demanding tasks in adverse environmental conditions. Candidates should also have good organizational skills, a positive attitude, strong work ethic, and willingness to learn and execute new tasks. Prior Mojave Desert, coastal California, Nevada and Sonoran Desert experience will be viewed favorably, but are not a requirement. Register of Professional Archaeologist certified candidates are strongly encouraged to apply.

SRI offers a compensation package that includes competitive pay, professional development, a comprehensive benefits package including medical, dental, life and disability insurance, retirement plan, and paid vacation/sick, and holiday leave. The salary for this position will be commensurate with the applicant's credentials, experience and industry standards.
